

24/03

Coming back to the Mankovsky video invitation I made last week there were some changes that the gallery owner wanted to make in the video. It was just changing the dates and the order of presenting things.

I also had to upload this code to the server and test it if it actually works. There were some small problems I encountered for example the Post request was not coming through or connecting with the right php file. This was due to the fact that some tests I did were on a local server and they respond differently than been actually uploaded to a real server. Some data was stored in the cache and realising that some changes I was making were not adjusting anything so I kept changing, but I just had to clear my cache memory. But now people are actually signing up for the event!
